replaced by a sense of shame and utter insignificance. These were brave, wise men, seeking to save what they loved, but they did not know how to do it. And she had no share in their wisdom, no part in their decisions. She drew away from them, and they did not notice. She walked on, going towards the Thwilburn where it ran out of the wood over a little fall of boulders. The water was bright in the morning sunlight and made a happy noise. She wanted to cry but she had never been good at crying. She stood and watched the water, and her shame turned slowly into anger. Magic. Ayo and Mead were much alike, and Otter saw in them what Anieb might have been: a short, slight, quick woman, with a round face and clear eyes, and a mass of dark hair, not straight like most people's hair but curly, frizzy. Many people in the west of Havnor had hair like that. Where the two paths met and joined to wind up to the heights of the Knoll, Thorion stopped and said, "Of course you do! What does it matter what Tarry thinks? You already play the harp about nine times better than he ever did." "Who are we," said the Doorkeeper, "that we refuse her without knowing what she is?" Silence apparently did not notice the pause or the extreme softness of Dulse's voice. "Milk. A few times, sitting on the waterstairs, the dirty harbor water sloshing at the next step down, the yells of gulls and dockworkers wreathing the air with a thin, ungainly music, he shut his eyes and saw his love so clear, so close, that he reached out his hand to touch her. If he reached out his hand in his mind only, as when he played the mental harp, then indeed he touched her. He felt her hand in his, and her cheek, warm-cool, silken-gritty, lay against his mouth. In his mind he spoke to her, and in his mind she answered, her voice, her husky voice saying his name, "Diamond". "Free!" said the tall woman, and her voice cracked like a whip. Then she looked at her companions. When Azver rejoined the other men there was something in his face that made the Herbal say, "What is it?". She left him standing at the waymeet, on the level ground, and walked up the hill path for a little way, a few strides. She turned and looked back down at him. "What keeps you from the hill?" she said. They greeted him, and Azver took the word - "Come into the Grove, Master Windkey," he said, "and little like models of wartime searchlights. human in character, like a caricature, even.
